

"The gift"

29.01.22

Waking at the train station the day after new year.

The station chief bows "dear sign of respect" as if he wished to wish me a happy new year!!

It is the small things that unite strangers, the respect you show them, invisible gifts (unmaterial).

I should have more gifts always in my pocket. (The healing gift, I received when coming back from my first Japanese trip)

= showing a real respect for people.

Respecting them.

The gift that unites life

the gift that is not a "trade".
Even tho it might be expected culturally.

the gift → the act of giving

You can transform a life with a gift.

(the gift you have received.)

✓ The beauty of a gift, is also,
often, the gift of something you didn't expect. That brings comfort, a smile, or even a new way of thinking.

the gift of presence -

as in the bow -

hakumashite, omoide to gozaimasen -

The gift of the bow

that acknowledges your presence, the gift of respect.

the gift that honours you.

it is free, sacred, simple the gift from the traveller to the host & vice versa
