Since the start of the detox,
there is a clear shift in "focus",
consciousness, and sense.

Shift in discipline and priorities.

Today, I woke up at 5 am,
gradually becoming aware of my mind tracking the day.

hands in prayer, as it is routine
now, I vow to evolve for the good of all sentient beings.

If the mental remains a tool,
a means to live, create, analyse.

Ultimately, "Being" is the way,
Being and letting be.

Being pure consciousness.

As yesterday I found refuge in "prayer", hands joined at the heart.

Today a focus on the and more body
motion.

More stability, more being.

Let your practice evolve slowly.

I do wonder how tattooing will remain the Dharma?

Let it flow. The path always reveals itself.
