

Freedom

I remember the days,
First finishing high school.
Smell of Summer,
tingling sensations -
love in the air.

a promise of freedom.
What does it taste like?

I had far too much freedom for sure. Yet, I am glad to have had all that experience.
Not counting all the friends who died or got arrested.

I had the grace of gaining my studies in the UK, again following love and adventure.

a spontaneous journey (unplanned) as all main events that seems to have occurred in my life).

a taste of freedom, a new culture, a new language, new sounds and sensations. love and adventure.
Thank you Megan.

rediscovering the self, creating
a new one based on study, discipline and training.

the focus takes his own shape

It makes me realize looking back that I always had a focus, except maybe during the teenagers years which were much more difficult.

Then again, End of the B.A.
a promise and taste of freedom, wishing to connect to the mainstream and doing things properly.

a new adventure started - would there be such thing as too much freedom?
